3. Edit Your Affiliation:

- On your profile page, locate the current affiliation section, which typically includes your institution's name, department, and your position.
- Click the pencil icon (✎) next to your current affiliation to enter the edit mode.
- Update your institution's name to reflect your new affiliation. For example, if you have moved from "University X" to "OUK," replace the old name with the new one.
- You may also update other fields such as your department, faculty, or specific research group.

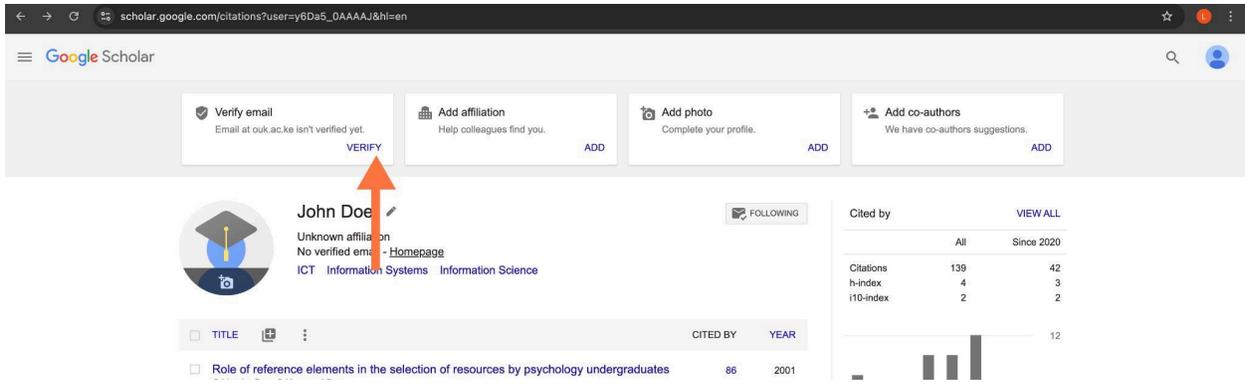

4. Update Your Email Address:

- Scroll down to the "Verified email at" section and update it to your new institution's email address (e.g., johndoe@ouk.ac.ke).
- Click the pencil icon to edit, and enter your new email address as previous screenshots.

5. Verify Your New Email Address:

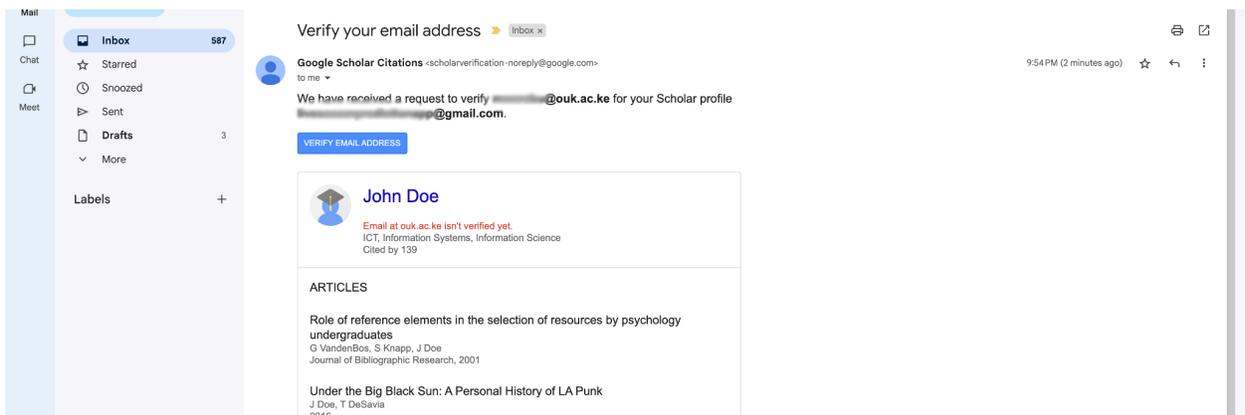

- After entering your new email, Google Scholar will send a verification email to the address you provided.

- Go to your new email inbox, find the verification email from Google Scholar, and click on the verification link inside.

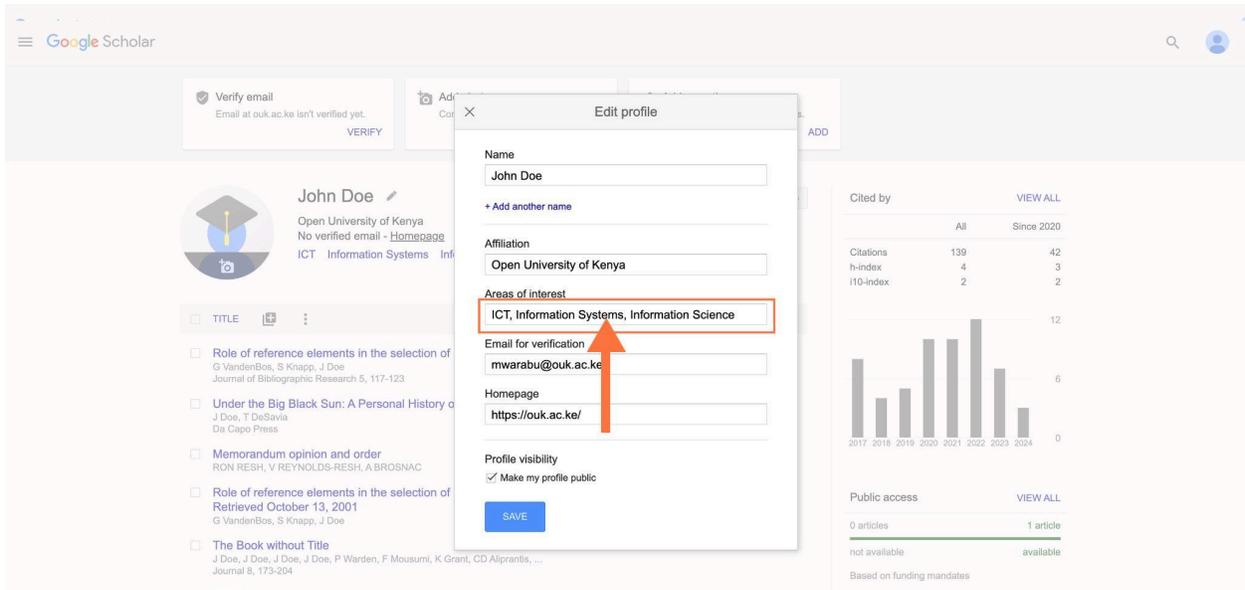

- This step is crucial to authenticate your new affiliation and maintain the credibility of your profile.

6. Update Your Research Interests (Optional):

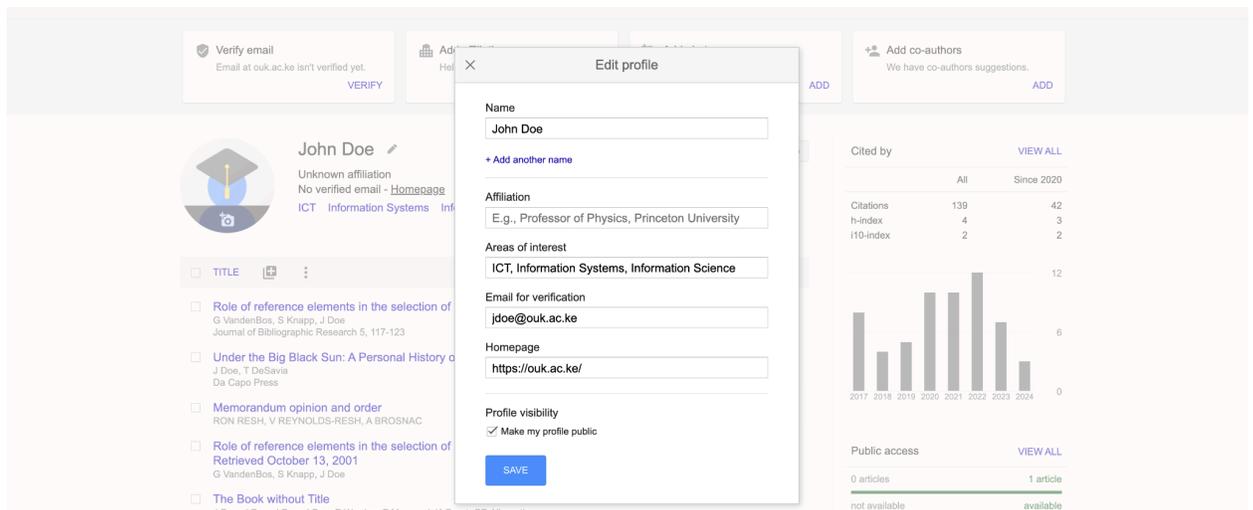

- While updating your profile, you can also revise your research interests. These are keywords that describe your academic focus and help others discover your profile.

- Click on the pencil icon next to the "Research interests" section, add or modify the keywords, and save the changes.

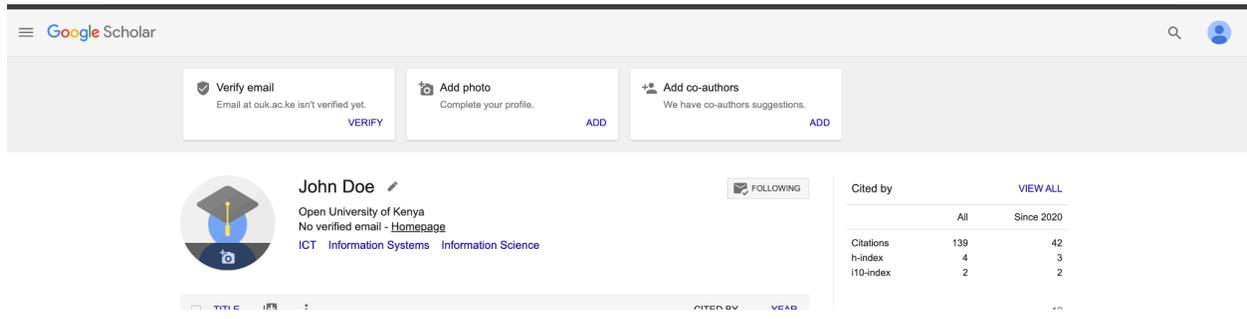

7. Review and Save Your Profile:

- After making all the necessary updates, review your profile to ensure that all the information is correct and up-to-date.
- Click the "Save" button to confirm all your changes.

8. Check Your Profile:

- Once saved, visit your profile page to ensure all updates are reflected correctly.
- Make sure that your publications and citations remain intact and that the new affiliation is visible under your name.

Steps to Create a Google Scholar Account:

● Sign in to Google:

- If you don't already have a Google account, create one by going to Google Account Sign Up.
- Once you have a Google account, go to Google Scholar and sign in using your Google credentials.

● Access Google Scholar Profile Creation:

- After signing in, click on the "My profile" link in the top right corner of the Google Scholar homepage.
- This will take you to the profile creation page where you can set up your academic profile.
